Little Red Schoolhouse Marm (Living History Educator)

The Preservation Foundation of Palm Beach welcomes ongoing inquiries from individuals interested in serving as Marms (Living History Educators) at the historic Little Red Schoolhouse at Phipps Ocean Park.

Marms play an essential role in bringing history to life by portraying nineteenth-century schoolteachers and guiding fourth-grade students through an immersive, interactive school day set in 1886. Through historical lessons, classroom activities, and role-playing, Marms help students discover what education and daily life were like for Palm Beach's earliest residents.

Ideal candidates will have:

- Experience working with elementary-aged children, preferably in education, museums, or historical interpretation.
- An enthusiasm for local history, storytelling, and hands-on learning.
- Strong communication and classroom management skills.
- Availability Monday thru Friday from 9:30AM to 12:30PM during the school year.
- A willingness to participate in training and required background screening.

Interested in becoming a Marm?

We welcome applications year-round. Individuals interested in joining our team are encouraged to contact the Youth Education Manager Melissa Paduani to learn more about future opportunities.

Melissa Paduani, Youth Education Manager
(561) 832-0731 x105
mpaduani@palmbeachpreservation.org